

Chapter 11: HYMN TEXT INDEX
for Congregational Hymnals
as of Sept 2010

NOTE: The links on this page are not working. When I changed from Microsoft FrontPage to Yahoo Sitebuilder two years ago, I have to copy this file to a .doc file, which kept the links, but they don't go anywhere. Please be patient as I work on this.

Not Done Yet!	This will be an on-going project. I could have simply copied other peoples' work as several were offered to me. I studied them as excellent examples of what other people had done, but none of them were exactly what I was after. I want this to be my work and not someone else's, so come back and watch it grow as I learn and discover more - I am finding great joy in this journey.
Hymns in Yellow	Hymns shaded with yellow are those hymns that have been in every single LDS congregational hymnal. The 'Old Faithful'; the Classics. Those that just aren't going away. The original hymnal had 90 hymns, and we're still singing 26 of them.
It's Not Here!	If you're looking for a beloved hymn from childhood and don't find it here, try the Auxiliary hymnal Index in the next chapter. Also remember that I still have more hymnals to add to this index, so come back often to see what's been added.
Links to Texts	Texts that are more complete or original than what is in LDS hymnals are linked so you can read the complete/original texts. Also, I have included all the texts from the original LDS hymnal as people enjoy seeing what hymns started it all for Latter-day Saint hymnals. As I continue on I will also include links to other texts of particular interest from other past LDS hymnals.
First Line vs. Titles	As a hymnist the proper way to title and list a hymn is by the first line of the text. However, most people know the title the editor gave the hymn better than the first line. So, with a few exceptions, I'm listing both the first line and the titles used in various LDS hymnals - some titles, however, are so well known and universal that it would be a waste to list the first line ('Battle Hymn of the Republic'; 'The Star-Spangled Banner', are two examples).
"The"	Titles and first lines that begin with the words 'The', 'A', and 'An' as well as other prepositions are alphabetized under said prepositions, which is the way of doing things since the computer started alphabetizing for us.
Contractions	In some hymnals "There's" has been changed to "There is"; the same with other contractions. (" There's Sunshine in My Soul" has become " There is Sunshine in My Soul".) If you don't find a title one way, look for it the other way.
W. W. Phelps	Brother Phelps adapted and edited many hymns; some of his editing is still in use. Hymns marked with an author as "ed. by W.W. Phelps" or "adapt. by W. W. Phelps" are hymns he either edited or adapted. Hymns marked as "attributed to W.W. Phelps" are hymns attributed to him as no earlier copies are known and we're not sure if someone else wrote them or not.
Authors	Different hymnals will have different authors credited for the same text, but because research is on-going I will list them according to the most recent volume.

An "X" mark is for those hymnals that are in this index. The rest will come as my research continues.

1835	X A Collection of Sacred Hymns, for the Church of the Latter Day Saints (Kirtland Hymnal)
1840	X A Collection of Sacred Hymns for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Europe (Manchester Hymnal)
1841	X A Collection of Sacred Hymns, for the Church of the Latter Day Saints (Nauvoo Hymnal)
1841-1926	The Manchester Hymnal went through 25 editions, and with the 14th edition it was titled Sacred Hymns and Spirituals Songs for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints , with printing being done in Salt Lake City. Subsequent editions were given either title, depending on where they were printed. In this chart I am simply going to list the date in which the hymn appeared in the book.
1889	Latter-day Saints' Psalmody; first LDS hymnal to include musical notation; no new texts in the first edition; was considered a companion volume to the 1871 hymnal. Hymns from the 1st edition will be listed by hymn number; hymns added in later editions will be listed by the date in which they were added.
1927	X Latter-day Saint Hymns
1948/50	X HYMNS: The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; hymn numbers listed are for the 1950 edition. A little over a dozen hymns were not carried over to the 1950 edition - in this index they are designated as "1948".
1985	X Hymns of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1985
	X Three-hymn supplement containing a national anthem from Canada, New Zealand, and Australia. All three were listed as hymn #342.
